

Yanga National Park Firewood collection licence application

Collection of Firewood under National Parks and Wildlife Act

Firewood collection period: 1 May 2022 to 30 September 2022

Firewood cost: $25.00 per tonne (this amount includes $2.27 GST). Pensioner Rate: $12.50 per tonne

Firewood obtained under this Licence shall only be for the personal domestic use of the licence holder and shall not be re-sold. No removal of firewood shall take place prior to receipt of a licence. Firewood licences are restricted to residents that live in the NSW Shires of Balranald and Murray River.

There is a 3-tonne limit for each firewood application and a 6-tonne limit per year per household (eg. 2 x 3 tonne licences). A one-month collection period from the date of issue applies per licence. The licence will be considered void after the one-month collection period. There will be no extensions or refunds on firewood licences issued. There will be up to a 10-day processing period for each firewood application.

Any applicant who is not personally collecting the firewood must identify the person who will be obtaining the firewood on their behalf. Collectors must be listed on this application form and will be identified on the licence.

Service organisations obtaining firewood for delivery to pensioner cardholders for their domestic use may be charged the concessional royalty rate, provided that delivery of the firewood will be at no added cost. All requests by service organisations must be written and on the organisation's letterhead and shall be signed by at least two officials authorised to represent the organisation.

Firewood is restricted to river red gum (Eucalyptus camaldulensis) sourced from residue piles and stockpiled for collection at the designated collection area shown on the map attached to the licence. The licence holder will be directed to the firewood collection area identified.

You can only buy firewood in whole tonnes. The following is a quantity guide and is based on the assumption that firewood is stacked no higher than the top of the tray, trailer or cage. Care should be taken not to exceed the legal carrying capacity of your vehicle or trailer when transporting firewood. Prior to collecting firewood you should contact the Yanga Office to obtain a road condition report and park closure notifications.
